

ANOTHER FIGHT RAGING TODAY

Russians and Japanese Are Having a Fierce Engagement Near Mukden.

KOURKI OUTFLANKS THE RUSSIANS

Japanese Have Three Times as Many Troops as the Russians--Heavy Fighting Is Expected To Follow.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Rome, Sept. 20.—A dispatch to the Agenzia Libera states that a great battle is being fought in the neighborhood of Mukden. General Kuroki, after a wide turning movement, has crossed the Hun river and has attacked the Russian right flank with a hundred thousand men. The total Japanese force is three times greater than the Russians and the conditions existing are about the same as existed at Liaoyang, but the Russians are in a much inferior position than they were there. In his official dispatch to the general staff at St. Petersburg General Kuropatkin announces that the reconnaissance on Saturday showed the Japanese very strongly entrenched, having a brigade of infantry and a battery of twelve guns west of Blanswupian. Further reports are that a Russian Cossack patrol attacked a Japanese pack-horse train and captured thirty horses with loads. The greater portion of the Japanese forces crossed the river at Tai Tac.

Fighting Near Mukden.
Conditions about Mukden are becoming more and more similar to the situation at Liaoyang before the final attack of Aug. 26. Kuropatkin reports that Rennenkampf and Samsonoff are conducting important reconnaissance to the south and southeast and heavy fighting with many casualties has resulted. The Russians were able to obtain important information, however, disclosing the fact that the Japanese armies at Yental and Bentisaputze have been greatly re-enforced and that a slow but steady advance is on.

To Form Second Army.
St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—Emperor Nicholas has decided to form a second Manchurian army. It will consist of the corps which are being sent to the far East, and Lieut. Gen. Linovitch probably will be given the command. Kuropatkin will become chief of both armies, but probably without the title of commander in chief. It is this impending reorganization which seems to have led to the countless rumors and reports about here of Kuropatkin's suppression of Viceroy Alexieff as commander in chief of the army, the latter's resignation, etc.

Recedes on Contraband.
Washington, Sept. 20.—Considerable satisfaction is felt at the state department here over the receipt of a dispatch from Ambassador McCormick in St. Petersburg confirming the reports that Russia has decided to practically adopt the position of the United States in regard to contraband of war. This is found in Russia's answer to the United States' protests in connection with the recent seizing of American cargoes. Ambassador McCormick cables a summary of the

CHOKERS ROUSE SOUTH BEND

Two Mysterious Attacks on Women Drive Residents to Arms.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
South Bend, Ind., Sept. 20.—The mysterious attack on Mrs. William Hoagland has been rendered more perplexing by a similar visit which the supposed same assailant has made on Mrs. Clint Nolan in the same neighborhood. This time, however, he did not succeed in his purpose, for his intended victim fought with vigor until the appearance of her husband and his brother with weapons, who alarmed the fellow and he fled. The neighborhood is greatly wrought up by the occurrences. Women are afraid to go into their yards after dark and a number of them are engaged in revolver practice. Mrs. Hoagland, who was brutally choked and beaten, is still critically ill, though she shows some improvement.

PORT ARTHUR IS STILL A RUSSIAN FORTRESS

Stoessel Has Driven Back the Daring Japs in Every Attack Thus Far Made Upon It.

London, Sept. 20.—A report direct from Chetov announces that a general assault upon Port Arthur began day before yesterday and continued until nightfall. It is believed it was the object of the Japanese to capture the forts north of the citadel. A St. Petersburg dispatch announces that General Stoessel states that on September 16th the Japanese made an attack at three in the afternoon at the Aqueduct redoubt but were repulsed. They were reinforced and made a second attack but were again repulsed by a heavy fire of rifle and machine guns with heavy loss.

If Russia could only have had those fabled Seven-League Boots, the Japs might have been lured on to St. Petersburg.

FIRE WORKS ARE NOT PARTICULAR

Immense French Pyrotechnic Display That Was Not Meant To Be.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Paris, Sept. 20.—The Rugglerie fire works factory at St. Denis which supplies the whole of France with pyrotechnics was totally destroyed by an explosion today.

DEAD COW CAUSED DESPERATE FIGHT

American Consul to Geneva Was Attacked by an Angry Mob of Laborers.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 20.—H. L. Washington, the American consul, and wife and a party of friends automobiling ran into a cow today. The owner of the animal and a party of Italian workmen attacked the party with stones. Washington was severely wounded in the head and the others sustained slight injuries. The party escaped by dashing at full speed through the mob.

ODD FELLOWS CONVENE ON THE PACIFIC COAST

Sovereign Grand Lodge Begins Its Sessions at San Francisco—Grand Sire, Is to Be Elected.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 20.—The sovereign grand lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, convened in this city Monday. Escorted by the uniformed patriarchs militant, the officers and members marched from the Lyceum theater to Native Sons hall, where the business sessions of the lodge are held.

The chief business of the morning was the presentation and acceptance of credentials and delegates. George Hawkes of Pennsylvania was elected to preside as deputy grand sire pro tem in the absence of R. E. Wright. In the afternoon there was a grand concert in the Mechanics' pavilion, followed by a grand reception at night. The sovereign grand lodge was given a public reception in the Lyceum theater. Mayor Schmitz delivered an address of welcome.

The coming election of a grand sire to fill the position that will be vacated at the close of his two years' term by John D. Goodwin attracts the most attention. Under the rules of the order the deputy grand sire, Robert E. Wright, should be elevated to the exalted position, but Mr. Wright has been forced to decline to serve on account of ill health.

It is probable, however, that his name will be presented for honorary election, after which he will likely resign. Those mentioned for the place are Judge John L. Nolan of Tennessee, W. L. Kuykendall of Wyoming, E. S. Conway of Illinois and Hill Montague of Virginia.

California members of the order champion an amendment to the constitution, which at present provides that no man either directly or indirectly engaged in the liquor traffic shall become a member of the order. They desire to have this provision modified so that those whose business is indirectly connected with the liquor traffic may join the order.

FIND BODIES OF MEN IN SWAMPS

Sterling, Illinois, Has a Mystery Which Excites the Community.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Sterling, Ill., Sept. 20.—The finding of the bodies of three men in the Merloca swamps twenty-eight miles southwest of the city this morning has caused great excitement. Their names have not yet been ascertained. It is believed they were murdered and thrown into the swamp.

SILVER MINE IS NOW DISCOVERED

Menominie the Scene of a Rush for the Coveted Lands by Farmers.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Menominie, Wis., Sept. 20.—Silver has been discovered on the farm of John Kierland near Red Cedar, three miles from this city. It is said at twenty dollars per ton. It is believed it is an old vein worked by Indians in early days. There is wild excitement and farmers are rushing for the lands.

WAIT FOR TIPS FROM THE BOSS

New York State Convention Adjourns Until the Question of Pol. icy Is Settled.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The state democratic convention was called to order at 12:20 o'clock. Wm. N. Hornblower made a speech as the temporary chairman and at 1:30 the convention took a recess until 11:00 tomorrow.

SMALLEST BABE BORN IS TAKEN TO THE FAIR

Springfield (Ill.) Infant, Weighing but Ten Ounces, Will Be Placed in Incubator at St. Louis.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 20.—The smallest baby on record was born at the Springfield hospital. The child weighed only ten ounces, and great fears are entertained for its life. Matron Hanser has left for St. Louis with the diminutive child, which will be placed in one of the incubators on exhibition at the fair.

Physicians say that the tiny body can probably be developed to normal proportions within a few weeks. It is a well-known truth that the smallest infants, as a rule, grow to be the largest adults. This is probably due to unusual care and nourishment during the early years, when the selection of food and the length of sleeping hours make a remarkable difference in the man to be.

The infant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis. No expense or trouble will be spared to preserve the spark of life which is now visibly wanting, but which experts assert can be made to endure if extraordinary precautions are adhered to.

The diminutive specimen of humanity will be kept in the incubator until the crisis is past. Residents of this city are very proud of having beaten a world's record.

RUSSIAN FLEET IS VERY LARGE

Forty Vessels of War Reported To Be in the Finnish Gulf, Steam- ing West.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Copenhagen, Sept. 20.—The sailing ship Magnet which today passed Nyborg, coming in reports that she sighted forty Russian war-ships in the Gulf of Finland, standing towards the west.

SERIOUS LOSS TO A LARGE CONCERN

Chicago Has Another Fire This Morning—Narrow Escapes Recorded.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)
Chicago, Sept. 20.—The four story building of the Consolidated Railway Electric company and American School Furniture company at Twenty-second and Clark streets, were destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is a hundred thousand dollars. Fifty employees had a narrow escape.

ECCENTRIC WOMAN IS TAKEN FOR A LUNATIC

Little Girl Mistakes Oddly-Dressed Possessor of Property for Fugitive From Insane Asylum.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Miss Sarah J. Kittle, an oddly-dressed but wealthy Utica woman, whose real estate holdings here dot the map like those of William Waldorf Astor in New York, was detained for an hour as a supposed lunatic.

Miss Kittle was walking through Hicks street, two blocks from the state hospital, where a field day was in progress. A little girl gazed at her old-fashioned clothes and odd appearance and concluded that one of the inmates had escaped.

"Aren't you going the wrong way?" asked the child.

"Haven't you a nerve?" replied Miss Kittle.

The child grabbed her sack and called for help. Hastily she explained to a man who responded, and he held Miss Kittle while the girl telephoned the hospital.

Miss Kittle's constant outburst of indignation impressed the man that she must be hopelessly insane. It was just an hour when the two representatives of the asylum arrived.

"She is not a patient," they explained to the crowd that had gathered. The gathering dispersed, and the attendant offered the local Hetty Green, profuse and humble apologies.

HEIRESS IS TO GET PROPERTY

Once Declared Legally Dead, She Now Proves She Is Living.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 20.—Ample proof having been furnished that Miss Mary Ann Gilbert is living in Stuttgart, Germany, Judge Cleveland in the probate court revoked a recent appointment of an administrator to her estate. When the appointment was made no word had been received by the relatives of Miss Gilbert for over seven years and her brother having died during her absence, leaving an estate valued at over $80,000, she was pronounced legally dead.

UNION PACIFIC TRAIN WRECKED

Accident Was Due to the Spreading of Rails, Causing Coaches To Leave Tracks.

PULLMAN ROLLS COMPLETELY OVER

Turns Three Times in Jumping an Eighteen-Foot Embankment--Six Passengers Were Seriously Injured.

Junction City, Kan., Sept. 20.—The east-bound Atlantic express on the Union Pacific was wrecked six miles west of here shortly after 1 o'clock Monday afternoon. The accident was caused by the rails spreading. The train was traveling about forty miles an hour. Three Pullman cars left the track, and the one at the rear of the train rolled over a fifteen-foot embankment, turning over three times. There were thirty-two persons in this car. Six of them were seriously injured and the rest received slight injuries. The seriously injured are: Fred S. Coburn, Woonsocket, R. I.; overcome by gas and legs bruised. A. Johnson, Providence, R. I.; cut about neck and head; may prove fatal. George Eagle, colored, Pullman porter; badly crushed about chest. Mrs. H. W. Rice, Providence, R. I.; bruised hip; serious.

The injured were brought to this city. The last two cars of the train were occupied by the St. Johns commandery, K. T. No. 1, and Calvary commandery, K. T. No. 13, both of Providence, R. I. The members were returning home from the San Francisco convalescence.

Trains Collide on Trestle.
Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 20.—Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton passenger trains Nos. 2 and 5, making their first trips over the lines of the Terminal company, collided near Ironville and twenty persons were injured; none of them seriously. Both engines were demolished and several coaches were smashed.

It is claimed that the north-bound engineer disregarded his schedule and did not take a siding at Conant street for the south-bound train to pass. The accident occurred on a trestle and the engines were telescoped in such a peculiar manner that none of the cars left the track. If the cars had gone over at that point there would have been a frightful loss of life.

BLACK HAND SOCIETY HAS APPEARED IN CHICAGO NOW

Italian Laborers Murdered by Assailants-- Were Not Robbed of Their Savings.

Chicago, September 20.—Vincenzo Bruno, the Italian laborer who was severely wounded by assailants who murdered his two companions in a shanty near Riverdale last night, died in the county hospital this morning. The finding of $485 in the clothes of the dead men lead the police to believe there was some other motive than robbery. It is now thought that the triple murder was the result of a feud among the Sicilians or work of the Black Hand society. The vicinity is being thoroughly searched for the murderers.

"A LONG LIFE AND MERRY ONE" WAS THE LAST TOAST

Good Fellow Passes Away Shortly After His Wedding Banquet in New York City.

New York, Sept. 20.—"A long life and a merry one" was the toast a dozen jolly companions drank to Edward C. Ellis and his beautiful young wife on Friday night at a banquet given him at the Hotel Belvedere. Monday the sorrowing widow accompanied the body of her husband to his former home in Schenectady. He had died of pneumonia in their apartments in the Belvedere at 3 o'clock in the morning.

So passed away in the rapid style in which he had lived another of New York's "good fellows," "high rollers" who helped the tenderloin and other gay resorts to keep up their reputations. But, unlike most of them, young Ellis—he was only 29—died a wealthy man.

His fortune is estimated at $5,000,000. He had not made a penny himself, it and a great deal more having been inherited through his father from his grandfather, John Ellis, a hard-fisted captain of industry, who founded the locomotive works at Schenectady that bore his name and brought him in many millions.

The gay life of New York knew two Ellises—the man who died and his cousin, Jr. Junior, who, after having run through an immense fortune, and being known as the "prince of good fellows," Edward Ellis, Sr., died more than four years ago after an honorable career, during which he extended the business and increased the income of the locomotive works founded by John Ellis.

Squanders Millions.
When the works were absorbed by the American Locomotive company it was given out that they were valued at $5,000,000. At the death of the elder Ellis this vast fortune went to his widow. Her son Edward was the apple of her eye, and no demand he might make upon her for money was too extravagant for her to grant. The young man left the family roof and came to New York, and was soon treading in the footsteps of his cousin "Bud."

On a visit to "Kid" McCoy's farm, in the summer of 1902, he met Mrs. McCoy's particular chum, Miss Estelle Earle, a pretty, blue-eyed, blond-haired girl, a few years younger than himself. Later he married her and became a model husband.

Coming Attractions.

The stirring comedy-drama of Swedish life, "Yon Yonson," is now in its thirteenth year of success. It is on its way here for its annual visit and will be seen at the Myers Grand Thursday evening. Presidents may come and residents may go; the gold standard may have allowed up the silver question; air ships may take the place of automobiles, but "Yon Yonson" will keep traveling on forever. Although this may seem an extravagant statement, one is really inclined to believe the truth of it, remembering that this is the thirteenth season during which the well-natured young Swede, during his first weeks in America, has proved an unfailing source of merriment to thousands of theatre-goers throughout the length and breadth of the land. Gradually, the company presenting "Yon Yonson" has been improved as the years have rolled by. While many of the old faces are still to be seen, there are new ones who also claim attention. This season, Charles A. Boyd, than whom there is no better character actor in the country, is introduced in the title role. Mr. Boyd has demonstrated his proficiency in dialect work and it is said that he makes the greatest "Yon" since the death of Gus Heege. All the scenery, equipment and accessories are new this year and particular attention has been paid to the specially features which are interpolated throughout the play.

...Forty Years Ago...

Box for the 12th Wisconsin Battery.—The railroad being again open ship a box to the battery boys. Packages must be left as early as Thursday. C. R. Curtis, People's Drug Store.

The Rebels Under Shelby and Fagan.—Five or six thousand strong made accessories of attacks on the railroads and various outposts between Little Rock and Duvall's Bluff, Arkansas, from the 24th to the 27th inst. The fights that ensued were generally unimportant but at Ashley station 460 of the Illinois regiment after a brave offense were compelled to surrender. Some of the First Nebraska cavalry were also captured. Shelby is supposed to be moving towards Missouri.

The Northwestern American Review argues that profanity indicates a chronic weakness of the intellect, and a poor education; for it requires no genius to swear, while it does require some learning and talent to converse in genteel language. Let the profane make a note of this.

The world say in preference to war, that we are fighting to maintain the Constitution. Then, of course this is not an Abolition war, as the smaller Democratic journals that have no characters to lose are constantly reiterating.

General Fremont is preparing a letter withdrawing from the presidential field. He will support Lincoln. General Hooker denies the report that he is in favor of McClellan. Of course.

It is reported that the rebels in Texas are arming negroes, both the slaves and free.

The cotton crop is an entire failure in Louisiana, having been destroyed by the army worm.

Critics' Appreciation.
Concerning Hamlet, as played by the late Wilson Barrett, a little story is told in the greenrooms where the actor was known. One of the ancients was talking of the Hamlets he had seen on the stage. "Well," he said, "I've seen dozens of 'em, but of all the 'actors' who played Hamlet give me Barrett. He was always done ten minutes afore any of the others."

Snake Problem.

The following question is now agitating newspapers in the east: "Two snakes, each measuring eight feet in length, and being of equal thickness, begin to swallow one another, each beginning at the other's tail. They swallow at the same speed and continue to do so as long as possible. What is the result?"

Heir to Italian Throne.

Racconigi, Italy, Sept. 16.—Queen Helena was safely delivered of a son at 11 o'clock Thursday night at the royal palace here. Both mother and child are doing well. The infant has received the name of Humbert and the title of prince of Piedmont.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY
From the report of the Committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by the convention, June 23, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected said John C. Spooner, J. V. Quarles, J. W. Babcock and Emil Busch as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

A PECULIAR CAMPAIGN.
The republican party in Wisconsin has never been called upon, to engage in a campaign like the present, and it is sincerely hoped that it will never be obliged to repeat the experience.

The governor of the state, elected as a republican, is engaged in a war against every man, whether of high or low degree, who does not endorse him, and bow submissively to his dictation. The national party Senators, Congressmen, and a long list of prominent republicans, are on his list.

The republican press of the state is practically a unit in denouncing his methods, and a speaking campaign has just been inaugurated for the purpose of enlightening the people from this stomp.

The opening speech was made by Mr. Jeffris the other night in Milwaukee. It was a vigorous arraignment of the governor, but no more vigorous than the case warranted. It was simply meeting vitrol with vitrol, and men who are inclined to criticize should remember that the Governor has been permitted to go on unchallenged without a public protest.

Some people are possessed with a queer infatuation. They appear to think that the governor possesses unlimited license to travel over the state conducting an abusive campaign, and that it is next to a crime to question any statement which he may make, or to demand any explanation as to his methods in conducting public business.

There has never been an administration so selfish, or one where the public generally had the feeling that their presence in the state house was regarded as an intrusion. A Janesville man called at the secretary of state's office one day last week, and found the door locked. A boy came out of an adjoining room and asked what he wanted? He gave the name of a friend, and was told that he was out, but when his attention was called to the fact that he was in plain sight from a window, the boy said, "He is busy now and can't see you."

As he passed down the hall two of the governor's henchmen noticed him, and one of them said, "What do you suppose that fellow is loafing around here for?" This is La Folletteism at the state house. Members of the legislature, who were not in sympathy, received the same scant courtesy two years ago.

It is not at all surprising that many men are asking the question, "Who is this man La Follette, and how much of the state does he own?" The campaign which is being waged against him, is a righteous campaign, and if it receives the endorsement of the supreme court, it will settle for all time the supremacy of the party and its right to govern.

WISCONSIN REPUBLICANS.

With every republican in the state without regard to factions, enthusiastic for Roosevelt and the national ticket, there can be no doubt about the outcome. The democratic party recognizes this fact and the democratic national committee will contribute neither funds nor speakers to the state campaign.

On state issues conditions are different, but the national party is not interested in the state issues. The democratic party hopes to elect a governor because of advantages presented by a divided republican party. The fact is fully appreciated that the breach which has existed for years is widening every day, and the governor not only reads men out of the party who do not endorse him, but is making every effort to defeat men of this class who have been nominated for minor offices throughout the state.

This sort of campaigning has called out the other side in denunciation equally vigorous, and the rank and file of the party is up against a proposition with which it has never been confronted before. It might be well for the extremists on both sides to remember that the case now rests with the supreme court at Madison, and that the decision soon to be rendered, will be accepted by a large majority of the party.

While the governor rebels in advance of the decision, and declares that he will submit his case to the people, whatever the court may decide as to the legality of such action, many of his admirers and supporters are frank to admit that they will not follow him.

S. A. Cook, the candidate for governor on the republican ticket has already said in an open letter that he proposes to be loyal to the decision of the court, and many of the men who are in sympathy with him will follow his lead in this respect. The great mass of voters are not politicians, and while they may have strong convictions on the issue now pending, they will not desert the party of life-long associates. There will be no democratic victory in Wisconsin this year.

Is Mr. Jeffris talking too plain? Read the other side and see what the governor is saying. Is the cesspool nauseating? How did it come there, and will it improve with age?

The truth may not always be pleasant, but that is no reason why it should be withheld. The state is suffering through misrule and falsehood, and it is time to inject into the campaign a little wholesome truth.

Mr. Watson, the populist candidate for President, is making life interesting for the democratic party. While he stands no show for election, he will contribute something to President Roosevelt's majority.

The "Iowa idea" has been lost in the shuffle, and the party is again united. The state will give an old time republican majority.

Senator Whitehead is devoting his time to politics in the home field, and is making friends for both himself and the party.

PRESS COMMENT.

Sheboygan Journal: Every citizen of Wisconsin sympathizes with the state supreme court judges in their hour of affliction.

Manitowoc Herald: An Oshkosh man is to wed his bride in the den of lions at the carnival there. It is a case of getting accustomed to new environments early in the game.

Green Bay Gazette: The dead republican state central committee went wrong again the first of the week in reviewing its work. What could be expected with thirteen members present?

Madison Journal: Everyone who knows Judge Stebecker has the fullest confidence in his integrity and fairness, and a high regard for his character. The good taste shown by him in declining to sit (in the contested ticket case) is therefore very generally commended.

Wautoma Argus: In advising his followers to vote for a democrat in preference to a republican who differs with him on some questions, Governor La Follette is using a dangerous weapon. Should all republicans who have opposed him be upon his advice, even though he were declared the regular nominee of the party his chances for re-election would be very poor indeed.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The position taken by Mr. Cook is in happy contrast to the one which Gov. La Follette has assumed. While Mr. Cook invites a ruling from the highest legal authority in the state, and offers to cheerfully abide by the decision of that body, the governor, on the other hand, has announced that the supreme court decision cuts no figure in the case, whatever, and that he will be a candidate no matter whether the decision is for or against him. The difference in these two positions is characteristic of the difference between the two men and certainly reveals Mr. Cook as the man to be preferred as governor of Wisconsin.

Remember '93-'96 and the home comforts which were wanting.
Remember '93-'96 and the wives and children wanting clothes.
Remember '93-'96 and the thousands of capable mechanics looking in vain for work.
Remember '93-'96 and the fulfilled promises made by the republican party in the campaign of 1896.
Remember '93-'96 and the delusive promises made by the democratic party in the campaign of 1892.
Remember '93-'96 and the landlord waiting at the door for the rent money which could not be provided.
Remember '93-'96 when the factory whistle failed to blow for another day's work, another day's pay.
Remember '93-'96 and the countless numbers of women and children waiting, faint and hungry, for the bread which never came.
Remember '93-'96 and the heart-sickness, the worry, the unpaid and unpayable debts, and all the many ills that attend the man out of work.
Remember '93-'96 and the hundreds of thousands of laborers walking the streets from sunrise to sunset looking for the work which could not be found.
Remember '93-'96 and the un-American soup house and other forms of charity necessary to relieve those who need no relief when they can work.
Remember these things. What will you gain by voting the democratic ticket November 8?

CAUGHT IN THE TIDE.

Difference of opinion is the spice of life.
Work and purpose is the morale of every heroic life.

A noble failure is better than a disreputable success.

Uncle Sam's passenger rolling stock would make a solid train 500 miles long.

The man who has never been unfortunate cannot appreciate good fortune.

This country's traffic makes use of 37,000 passenger cars, and 1,600,000 for freight.

Many a man's conscience troubles him only when his neighbor does something wrong.

Four hundred and sixty-four trains enter and leave the New York Central station every day.

He who is most slow in making a promise is the most faithful in the performance of it.

The country's locomotives number 41,000, of which 14,000 are equipped for passenger service.

What is past is past. There is a future left to all men who have the virtue to repent and the energy to atone.

WASTED REGRETS.

It is useless to plead with life to let you unlive the past. Take your lesson and go on into a wiser future.

Don't waste time and vital forces in continual regret. There is nothing so exhausting to mind and body as regret.

Let your resolutions become a part of your character, making it stronger and braver. Let your errors make you kinder.

"If I only had not done this or said that—if I could go back—if I could live that day over again!" What folly it is to indulge in weak replinings of that nature!

No human being ever did go back; no lips were ever allowed to unsay words; no feet were permitted to untread steps once taken.

Because you have been weak, because you have suffered through weakness, let your human sympathy be great, and your charity broad. Be a guide and a counselor to others who are tempted, if they will listen to you.—London Answers.

NUGGETS FROM GEORGIA.

Let us all have charity—and lots of it; for some of the saints in this world need it.

There's always a bird singing in the wilderness, but it's also a good idea to get out of the wilderness.

The folks that think this world isn't bright enough would growl if they found the next world blazing.

Misery likes company, but when you see it coming down the road just make up your mind you don't feel sociable.

We have ceased to look for wise men by candlelight, and gas is too high to be wasted on them.—Atlanta Constitution.

Gold on Wisconsin Farm.

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 20.—Gold has been found on W. H. Hickman's farm, three miles from here, by workmen digging a well, and as a result the Knapp Mining and Improvement company, with a capital of $1,000,000, was organized to develop the property.

Bomb Throwing at Concert.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 20.—During a band concert a lead pipe loaded with an explosive was set off, and Pasquale Ferri and Walter Cox, 15 years old, probably were fatally injured.

Stopping a Wild Turkey Fight.
There are turkey stories as well as fish stories. If any one should ask you, and N. P. Bullock (Doc) tells the following, and vows that it is true:
A few days ago he was not far from Dothead, near the old racetrack back of the Bossum field, when he saw ahead of him two wild turkey gobblers fighting. Mr. Bullock stopped out into the bushes, and crept along till he was opposite the fighting fowls. So intent were they in their contest that he was not heard. With a stealthy step he advanced till he was almost upon them, and then he made a spring and caught the two by the neck, one in each hand.
Then ensued a battle between man and birds. With wings and feet the latter fought, scratching Mr. Bullock's arms and tearing his clothing. With much difficulty one bird was carried to the ground, where its head was crushed by the man's foot, while the other maintained its desperate scratching with feet and striking with wing. The first one disposed of, the other soon fell an easy victim.
Mr. Bullock says that he had no idea how strong a turkey was before. The two turkeys were grown gobblers, with beards nearly three inches long.—Tarboro (N. C.) Southerner.

The Power of Modern Machinery.

The first flour was made by pounding wheat kernels between two stones. Flour today is made by machinery. The first paint was made by mixing White Lead and Oil with a stick; the Best Paint (Health & Milligan) is mixed by modern grinding machines built especially for this purpose, and there is the same difference between the two paints as between the first flour with its coarse particles and grit and the modern patent flour.

The paint mixed by hand cannot be a perfect paint; it cannot be perfectly mixed and ground together with a stick.

Flour, water and a yeast cake will make good or poor bread according as you mix and handle them; so also White Lead, Linseed Oil and Zinc will make good or bad paint. Health & Milligan Paint has been made for over fifty years, the proportions of each ingredient are exactly right and ground together by massive machines into a very fine, perfect paint. Health & Milligan Mixed Paint costs 50c per hundred square foot of surface painted (2 coats), Lead and Oil costs 71c. It is the difference to which Health & Milligan Paint is ground that makes it cost less to use. A pound of flour can be spread over a larger surface than a pound of sand. As to the wear Health & Milligan Paint is guaranteed to wear fifty per cent longer than Lead and Oil. Remember all mixed paint is not alike. Buy the best—Health & Milligan.

CITY FATHERS DID MUCH BUSINESS

MONTHLY REPORTS OF CITY OFFICIALS ADOPTED.

MANY STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Property Owners and Taxpayers on South Main Street Object to Work Being Done This Fall.

At the regular meeting of the common council held at the council chambers in the city hall last evening, Acting Mayor W. A. Murray called the meeting to order. All the aldermen except Sherman, Jackson, Schmidley and St. Louis, answered to the roll call. The minutes of the last regular meeting and of a special meeting were read by Clerk Badger and approved by the council as read. Several reports were passed upon, including the city treasurer's, the municipal court report for August, the bond of Blair & Summers for the erection of the new fire station, the report of the assistant street commissioner, on several sidewalks in different parts of the city which needed repairs, and the report of City Attorney Burpee of the disbursements of the $100 fund which was laid aside for the preparing of the sewer work and bridge contract. The plans and specifications for the construction of storm sewers throughout the different wards and the repairs and improvement of several streets were also submitted.

Petitioners Presented.—Two lengthy petitions were presented from the taxpayers and residents of the first ward in the vicinity of Terrace street. One petition signed by about thirty property owners requested that the grade of the street be fixed at 34 feet instead of 30 feet as formerly decided by the committee. Another petition from about thirty-five property owners of the same street, who had held a mass meeting recently to decide on the width of the street, was presented by Alderman Merritt, asking that the street be thirty-six feet wide, which was finally adopted by the council. The appointment of the mayor of George Crane and O. H. Hopgood as special police without pay from September 8 to October 8 was unanimously adopted.

Reports Adopted

After a recess of ten minutes work was resumed and much business was transacted. Alderman Matheson moved that the report of the city treasurer be accepted and placed on file. Motion carried. Alderman Matheson also moved that the report of City Attorney Burpee of the expenses incurred in the preparing of work for sewerage and bridge contract, of which $100 was voted to do the work and an expenditure of $50.49 had been accounted for leaving a balance of $49.51, was accepted and placed on file. Alderman Merritt stated that there had been some misunderstanding in the weight of the coal delivered at the fire station and recommended that the city clerk look into the matter as he saw fit. Alderman Matheson of the finance committee submitted a batch of bills against the city, which were upon his motion adopted and ordered paid. Alderman Matheson also moved that the city be instructed to borrow $1500 to be placed to the credit of the fire and water fund for sixty days, so as to allow the committee to meet the necessary expense in that time; then the taxes for the year would have come in enough to meet this deficiency. His motion was adopted, all voting in the affirmative. Alderman Matheson moved that the officials' salary, due the first of October, be paid. Motion carried.

Alderman Connel moved that the report of the municipal court for the month of August be placed on file. Motion adopted. Alderman Connel also presented the bond of Blair & Summers, for the erection of the new fire station, which he moved be adopted. Motion carried. Alderman Merritt moved that the report of the assistant street commissioner for the laying and the repairing of several sidewalks in different parts of the city be adopted. Motion carried.

Streets Improved.—Alderman Merritt introduced an amendment to the plans and specifications of the street assessment committee on the repaving of South Main street from the north side of East Milwaukee street to the south side of South First street; East Milwaukee street, from the east side of Division street and West Milwaukee street from the east side of High street to the west side of Academy street, which was adopted. Alderman Merritt moved that the city engineer be instructed to inspect the grade, quality and material of the sewer to be used from the main sewer to the curb stone and prepare plans and specifications for the same. Motion adopted. Alderman Matheson stated that several of the property owners on South Main street did not like to have the work on South Main street done this fall, as there might be a tendency to settle during the cold winter months and the spring thaw, and he moved that the street assessment committee be instructed to meet the property owners of that street this afternoon at the city hall and take action on the same. Motion carried. Permission was granted to E. A. Baum to build a four foot brick walk on the Dolan road. Alderman Matheson moved that an extension to the Clark street sewer from Main street to the river be made. Motion carried. Alderman Grove moved that the petitions of the Terrace street property owners be tabled. Motion carried. Alderman Merritt moved that the width of Terrace street be made 36 feet instead of 32 feet as decided by the street assessment committee. Motion carried. Alderman Connel moved that Fourth avenue, South Main and North Main street be graded. Motion carried. Frank Britt was given permission to move a barn from the Smith & Bailey addition to his Lincoln street residence. Alderman Comstock moved that necessary repairs be made to the stone crusher plant where needed. Motion adopted. Alderman Comstock moved that the names of Aldermen Matheson and Merritt be added to the street assessment committee. Motion carried.

Wire Ordinance.—Alderman Matheson introduced an ordinance repealing the wire, cable and pole ordinance which was adopted by the council on June 27, 1904, and asked that the ordinance be held over until the next regular meeting, so as to get the vote of all the aldermen on the ordinance. Alderman Grove moved that the street commissioner be instructed to clean the gutters on Magnolia avenue. Motion carried. Alderman Matheson also brought up the matter of the telephone company who are using the alley back of the Hayes block for the use of underground conduits, and if the alley was not a public highway they would have to lay their wires on South Main street and would like to do this work this fall. The matter was left in the hands of the highway committee to report at the next regular meeting. Alderman Merritt then moved an adjournment.

FUTURE EVENTS.—"You Yonson" at Myers theatre, Thursday evening, Sept. 22.

PET DOG CAUSED DEATH OF MASTER

William Dennison Dies in Great Agony as Result of Bite of Pet Puppy.

(Special to The Gazette.)—William H. Dennison, a veteran drayman of this city, died last night from hydrophobia. He was bitten on the face by his little pet dog a week ago and the disease developed to such an extent that it was necessary at times to strap him down. This is the first fatal result from hydrophobia that is on record in this city. Mr. Dennison was 48 years old and a nephew of David H. Wright, grand master of the Masonic lodges of the state of Wisconsin.

Waupaca Post: Thirteen of the members of the old republican state central committee, which went out of existence on May 19, 1904, met at Madison on Monday, and gravely certified to the secretary of the state that its action in organizing the symposium convention regardless of who were elected delegates thereto, was correct and legal, and that the ticket nominated at that convention was the regular republican ticket. Having done this, the committee again soberly adjourned sine die, having obeyed the orders of the boss. The spectacle of these thirteen men, nine of whom are office holders under the governor, solemnly sitting up on their own actions, acting as counsel, judge and jury, furnishes the comedy element which has thus far been lacking in the La Follette campaign.

DID THE MAYOR ALLOW GAMBLING

Mayor Curtis of Madison, Is Under the Search Light of Opinion.

(Special to The Gazette.)—Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—Mayor Curtis of Madison thinks that even gambling has its uses. He opposes gambling dens that allow young men and heads of families to enter and get rid of their money but he is of the opinion that traveling men who look for these places ought to be treated good and proper. Madison has a number of these dives. A prominent business man recently lost $150 in one night. He made complaint to District Attorney F. L. Gilbert, who severely reprimanded Sheriff McWatty and Chief of Police Baker. He told them that unless they close the dens he will do it himself. The chief of police acknowledged that he allowed the lawlessness to prevail because the gamblers had made an agreement with former mayors that they be allowed to operate.

Milwaukee News: The action of Mr. Cook is a compliment to his citizenship. It is the act of a citizen faithful to the duty he owes his citizenship. It indicates that in his adjustment of himself to his political opportunities he is not a mere groveler or autocrat for office or power. That if he is to have power he wishes to attain it only rightly and in the spirit and purpose that organized society as expressed in government may be strengthened and made better. That the action of judicial tribunals should be upheld in the respect to all forms of government. The effect of the action of Mr. Cook is to sustain that purpose and in that it does that, it can not fasten command in upholding the integrity of the judiciary in the spirit as well as the letter of its decrees.

JEFFERS LEAVES FOR HIS SPEECH

Janesville Man Much in Demand Throughout the Entire State.

M. G. Jeffers left this morning for Menomonie where he will deliver his speech on the republican situation in Wisconsin. Tomorrow night he will speak at Hudson and later will go to other towns in the northern part of the state. Definite plans have not yet been completed as to just what towns and what time the rest of the week will be put in. In speaking of the account of his speech in Eau Claire last Saturday night he said: "It was a long way from being a frost. The audience was not as large as we expected, the night being unpleasantly hot and a heavy storm threatening. However, there were over 400 people in the house, and they furnished enthusiasm enough to more than make up for any lack in numbers. I was well satisfied with the meeting and local republican leaders expressed the same opinion regarding it."

Secretary F. R. Bentley of the state central committee is hard at work laying out the routes for the various speakers who are expected to take the stump without delay, and said yesterday that in a few days the early part of the program at least will be mapped out. Local conditions have to be considered in deciding where to place the speakers and this makes the work necessarily slow.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF OLD PIONEERS

Mr and Mrs. M. P. Cunningham of This City, Celebrate Happy Event Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Cunningham, who reside on Fourth avenue, and who have made this city their home for a number of years past, will tomorrow celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. The happy old couple were born in Ireland and came to America with their parents while quite young and settled in Dane county. They grew to young manhood and womanhood together, and after Mr. Cunningham had enlisted in the army and served his country for five years, they were married at Madison on September 25, 1854. They immediately went to housekeeping on a farm in Dane county, and afterwards moved to Green county where they resided for a number of years, and in 1892 moved to Monroe where they resided for four years prior to coming to Janesville where they have since made their home. A large family of five sons and six daughters have blessed their union.

Attorney J. J. Cunningham, Dr. H. A. Cunningham and Miss Phoebe Cunningham, children of the happy couple, make their home with their parents in the city.

CHAPTER XXVI.

GRAFTON WINS AND LOSES.

As the three men and the servants left the room, with an expression of relief so great that she could not describe it, Anne sank down in the chair by the table. She thought her lover extricated at last from his precarious position. Her emotions during the last few moments, when she feared that the marquis would discover his presence, and then when de Vitre had so nobly interfered in his behalf, had been almost more than she could bear. She forgot for the moment that the marquis had not gone with the others. She had not remarked his suspicious silence, his strange movement, in the excitement of the passing moments.

"Now, Mademoiselle de Rohan," he said harshly, "since this play has been played out and the actors in the little comedy have departed, will you be good enough to explain the situation? Will you tell me who it was that wore Josette's cloak; who listened in the armory; whom you have entertained in this room, whom you conceal in your chamber?"

"What mean you, monsieur?" she faltered, all her terror coming back again. "Monsieur de Vitre?"

"De Vitre is a fool," exclaimed the marquis angrily, "and yet I admire the man. He took it all upon himself like a gallant gentleman."

"Monsieur de Vitre told nothing but the truth, monsieur."

"Quite so," answered the marquis, with difficulty restraining himself. He was in deadly earnest, with the suppressed fury of his most dangerous moment. "Quite so. I have no doubt he told the truth. It spoke in his eyes. But did he tell it all? You answer not. But what need? Did Monsieur de Vitre leave this hat on the table? I have seen hats like that, mademoiselle, but upon English heads."

"Monsieur," stammered the girl. "No more faltering!" continued the marquis, pacing back and forth before her. "He is here. A lover in your room, an Englishman, and you have betrayed me, betrayed your honor; you—"

"Stand aside!" he said harshly from the camp. "Stand aside!"

He laid his hand roughly on her arm. She struggled to bar the way, moaning faintly. The door was thrown open, the hangings dashed apart, and Grafton, sword in hand, sprang into the room. At last!

"Monsieur le Marquis!" he cried, "release mademoiselle!" By heaven, no man lays a hand upon her when I am by, not even though he be her father!"

"Captain Grafton!" exclaimed the marquis involuntarily letting go his granddaughter's wrist and falling back in great surprise, "you here, sir?"

"Why not? I love the Countess de Rohan; and, presumptuous as I may seem, I dare to affirm that she loves me as well. Indeed, sir, since the moment I held her in my arms five years ago in this very chamber at midnight, and kissed away her tears, I have loved her. The fortune of war brought me wounded to her feet in Canada, sir, and there I found I loved her still; and, what was more, I learned that she had not forgotten me. She left me behind wounded and ill, but I followed her here. Sir, I have come to claim her."

"My God!" faltered the marquis, as if dazed by this sudden development of the situation, "and I trusted her to your honor!" He looked years older at that instant, his face blanched and working. Grafton puffed him.

"Monsieur, I pledge you that honor that I left her as sweet and innocent a child as when I first knew her."

"And yet you came from her bed-chamber even now, and you kissed her at midnight?"

"'Twas five years since, sir."

"Do you love this man, Anne?"

"More than heaven itself!" she answered, stepping to his side.

"And you came to take her away, sir, like a thief in the night?" sneered the marquis, his color coming back as he mastered his surprise and regained a portion of his self-command.

"We had gone, sir, a moment since," broke in Grafton ruthlessly, irritated by the sneer, "had we not been interrupted."

"Mon Dieu, 'tis impossible you can love this Englishman, Anne!"

"An American, sir—"

"Peace! 'Tis all one, this officer, this enemy of France, this commoner!"

"Yes," murmured the girl.

"You love him more than family, than country, than rank, than station, than honor?"

"More than all the world, monsieur."

"And you were here alone with him at midnight in this tower? He kissed you?"

"Yes, monsieur, but I was only a child."

"You nursed him in sickness in Canada?"

"Yes, monsieur."

"Were you about to fly with him this evening, as he says?"

"Yes."

"And he came from your bed-chamber! Oh, mon Dieu, mon Dieu!" screamed the old man, passion, despair, wounded pride, quenched ambition, frantic rage in his voice. "The deep dishonor of it! This from my granddaughter, this from a child of my ancient house! An innocence gone, a reputation blasted, a character know."

"Yes, and I was a fool. You will be my wife, my own, in one moment. You can go away with me with a clear conscience then. And when you are mine let me see the man who will dare question me!"

"O Philip, I am so happy! 'Tis like life from death. I thought you lost, and now—"

The archbishop at that moment appeared in the doorway attended by Jean-Renaud.

"You sent for me, my dear marquis?" he said blandly, but in great surprise.

"I did, monseigneur."

"And for what purpose, pray?"

"I want you to solemnize a marriage, that of my granddaughter and this—this gentleman."

"What, monseigneur?"

"And now, too?"

"But, monseigneur le Marquis, did you not say she was betrothed to the Count de Kersaint?"

"Monseigneur," answered the marquis haughtily, "here is a strange mischance. I can not tell the tale, but the honor of my house requires a marriage, now and instantly, between this young man and the Countess Anne de Rohan. I jest not, monseigneur. Morbleu! do I look like a man who trifles? You have known me of old, most reverend sir, I mean what I say. The marriage must take place!"

"But Monsieur de Kersaint?"

"God help him when he knows the truth!" said the marquis. "Will you proceed, monseigneur?"

"The young man is of our faith?"

"No, monseigneur," answered Grafton. "I am a Protestant."

"But you can dispense with that yourself, monseigneur," interrupted the marquis promptly. "I tell you nothing shall prevent this."

"If the young man consents to—"

"Will you bring up the children of this union, should any be born to you, in the faith of the Holy Roman Catholic church, monseigneur?" asked the prelate.

"I will, so help me God," answered Philip promptly.

"There will be no children," interrupted the marquis grimly. "Will you now proceed?"

"But we lack an altar, vestments, lights, attendants, witnesses, marquis!"

"No altar is needed here, and as for witnesses, I am one, Josette is another, and if you want a third, here is Jean-Renaud—people upon whom I can rely."

"Mademoiselle," said the perplexed archbishop, turning to Anne, "do you wish to marry this man?"

"Yes, monseigneur."

"Do you love him?"

"With all my heart."

"And you, monsieur?" he continued, looking at Grafton.

"My love and desire, most reverend sir, more than match her own, yet I must say, I protest that this hasty marriage implies no doubt upon the honor of the lady who takes my name."

"Hell and furies!" cried the marquis incoherently, "who dares to imply such a thing! Monseigneur, will you proceed, or shall I kill this man before your eyes?"

The brief words which mean so much and bind so fast were soon spoken. Philip and Anne made the responses, and kneeling before the aged cleric received his benediction. As soon as he had finished, the archbishop, realizing that here was a delicate situation, discreetly withdrew, and left the participants in this strange wedding alone once more. As they rose to their feet the Englishman turned to the woman, all his thoughts swept away in the knowledge that at last she was his wife.

"My own, my own!" he cried, taking her in his arms. But before he could press one kiss upon her forehead the marquis intervened.

"No, sir," he cried, "you have dishonored the house of Rohan. You have made what amends you could by marrying the girl. That is all. You shall never see your wife again. I shall kill you where you stand. The connection shall end that way. Draw, sir!" cried the old man, shaking his blade in the other's face. "Defend yourself, if you can."

"I will not cross swords with a man old enough to be my grandfather," answered Grafton—"one who stands in such a relationship as you to the lady I am happy to call my wife. By your consent, by your urging, we were married. She is mine before Heaven itself. No man may part her from me. She goes with me."

"How will you take her hence, pray?"

"By this window, through which I came," cried Grafton, lifting up his wife in his arms and springing backward.

"A mo!" called the marquis loudly. The servants came running into the room in response to this call.

"Hail!" cried the marquis. "The Baron de Croisic's way! 'Tis his tower. You shall end like the lover of the fair Jehane. Jean-Renaud, seize this man."

Jean-Renaud stepped forward slowly. His affections were with his young mistress, and he secretly admired the gallant Englishman who had won her, yet his duty bade him obey the marquis.

"Back!" cried Grafton, whipping out his pistol and pointing it at Jean-Renaud. "A step nearer and you are a dead man."

The man stopped short; he knew decision when he met it.

"'Tis true you have the advantage, Monsieur le Marquis. I can not take Madame Grafton away from you tonight, alone as I am, but be certain that I will come back for her with force that cannot be denied. I shall have her if I have to tear down the castle stone by stone. Take good care of madame, sir," Grafton continued insolently. "I leave her in your charge. Back, you cattle!" he cried, swinging his pistol toward the servants and lackeys, who were huddled together in the rear of Jean-Renaud. "Anne, wife, farewell!"

"Monsieur," said the marquis, striving to regain his wonted calmness, "you may storm the castle if you will. You will not find madame here. When the French fleet sails in the morning we go with her. Now, men, upon him!"

Grafton discharged his pistol at the nearest valet, and as the man fell he hurled the empty weapon into the midst of the rest. With one look at Anne he turned and sprang through the oriel window. He grasped the rope and slid down it rapidly.

The men surged toward the balcony. Anne sprang between them. She caught the marquis by the arm and Josette seized Jean-Renaud, but the rest swarmed past them and filled the balcony. One of the men lifted a dagger to cut the rope. A deafening roar rang out in the night; the man screamed with pain and his arm dropped to his side. Another shot was heard. The crowd shrank back for a few seconds and Grafton reached the foot of the tower. He scrambled down the rocks to find old Jabez, smoking moustache in his hand, waiting for him in the prow of the boat.

"Who fired?" he cried.

"'Twas me, yer Honor. I was a watchin' the winder. I seen yer Honor come out, then I seen the man raise the knife—an' I blazed away at him. I ain't forgot how to shoot nuther."

"You saved me," cried Grafton. "Shove off the boat. Lively! Break out the oars; we must get away."

Slocum sprang to the oars and Grafton seized the tiller. The balcony above was filled with men now. The old marquis was there, and Anne—his wife. He could spare only a second for a glance. The light from blazing torches threw a dim illumination down upon the little bay. A woman screamed. Shots rang out, bullets splattered the water all about them.

"Are you hit, Jabez?"

"No, sir; be you?"

"I'm all right, too; pull, man, pull, for God's sake!"

Presently they were in the entrance and out of danger. The wind was blowing offshore. The night was mild and pleasant now. The moon was shining. They easily threaded their way among the rocks. The mast was stepped, the sail set, and the little boat raced out to sea. They were away, they were free.

"Beg pardon, sir, did you git wot you went fer?" asked Jabez, after a while.

"Yes," answered Grafton. "The French ships are to sail for Quiberon Bay at six in the morning."

"Ain't the lady, sir?"

"I married her."

"Good Lord!" exclaimed the old man under his breath. "Quick work, that! An' you left your wife?"

"With her grandfather, Slocum. She sails on Le Thiers with the fleet in the morning. Not a word of this to the men, as you value my approval. You have done well and I shall not forget it."

"Thank Heaven, you have come!" exclaimed Hatfield, as the dinghy swept alongside the gangway of the Maldstone and Grafton clambered on board. "I had almost given you up."

"What time is it?" asked the captain.

Before Hatfield could answer eight bells rang out forward on the forecastle.

"In the very nick of time!" exclaimed Grafton.

"Look yonder, sir," said the lieutenant, pointing away.

The ships in the harbor were ablaze with lights. They were getting under way.

"Ay," said Grafton, "they are leaving this morning, now. The wind has changed. They are going to Quiberon. Square away immediately, and crack everything on. We must get the news to Sir Edward before night."

"And the lady?" queried Hatfield.

"Did you see her?"

"Yes," answered Grafton, smiling. "I not only saw her, but I married her. Come into the cabin after you are on the course and I will tell you all about it."

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Janesville Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To alter the blood is the the kid-ney's duty.

When they fail to do this the kid-neys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills Janesville people endorse our claim.

Urinary trouble, diabetes, Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

L. Lawrence of 408 S. Franklin St., engineer at the Janesville Electric Light Co., says: "Seven years ago I injured my back by falling through a bridge near Afton into the Rock river. I was on a traction engine, its weight broke through, and the whole thing went into the stream. Since that time my back has ached by spells sometimes very severely, if I caught cold it settled in my kidneys and if I brought a strain on my back, lifting the result was a bad backache and sharp twinges of pain in my loins. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and after I used them I was free from backache. I am in better health than any time since falling through the bridge."

Sold for 50 cents per box, by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

HIGH CLASS DRUGGISTS

AND — OTHERS.

The better class of druggists, everywhere, are men of scientific attainments and high integrity, who devote their lives to the welfare of their fellow men in supplying the best of remedies and purest medicinal agents of known value, in accordance with physicians' prescriptions and scientific formula. Druggists of the better class manufacture many excellent remedies, but always under original or official names and they never sell false brands, or imitation medicines. They are the men to deal with when in need of anything in their line, which usually includes all standard remedies and corresponding adjuncts of a first-class pharmacy and the finest and best of toilet articles and preparations and many useful accessories and remedial appliances. The earning of a fair living, with the satisfaction which arises from a knowledge of the benefits conferred upon their patrons and assistance to the medical profession, is usually their greatest reward for long years of study and many hours of daily toil. They all know that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative remedy and that it gives universal satisfaction, and therefore they are selling many millions of bottles annually to the well informed purchasers of the choicest remedies, and they always take pleasure in handing out the genuine article bearing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package. They know that in cases of colds and headaches attended by biliousness and constipation, or of weakness or torpidity of the liver and bowels, arising from irregular habits, indigestion, or over-eating, that there is no other remedy so pleasant, prompt and beneficial in its effects as Syrup of Figs, and they are glad to sell it because it gives universal satisfaction.

Owing to the excellence of Syrup of Figs, the universal satisfaction which it gives and the immense demand for it, imitations have been made, tried and condemned, but there are individual druggists to be found, here and there, who do not maintain the dignity and principles of the profession and whose greed gets the better of their judgment, and who do not hesitate to recommend and try to sell the imitations in order to make a larger profit. Such preparations sometimes have the name—Syrup of Figs—or "Fig Syrup" and of some piratical concern, or fictitious fig syrup company, printed on the package, but they never have the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of the package. The imitations should be rejected because they are injurious to the system. In order to sell the imitations they find it necessary to resort to misrepresentation or deception, and whenever a dealer passes off on a customer a preparation under the name of "Syrup of Figs" or "Fig Syrup," which does not bear the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of the package, he is attempting to deceive and mislead the patron who has been so unfortunate as to enter his establishment, whether it be large or small, for if the dealer resorts to misrepresentation and deception in one case he will do so with other medicinal agents, and in the filling of physicians' prescriptions, and should be avoided by every one who values health and happiness. Knowing that the great majority of druggists are reliable, we supply the immense demand for our excellent remedy entirely through the druggists, of whom it may be purchased everywhere, in original packages only, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, but as exceptions exist it is necessary to inform the public of the facts, in order that all may decline or return any imitation which may be sold to them. If it does not bear the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, do not hesitate to return the article and to demand the return of your money, and in future go to one of the better class of druggists who will sell you what you wish and the best of everything in his line at reasonable prices.

PROTECTS HONOR OF HIS WIFE

Alleged Slanderer of Woman Slain by Her Husband.

Marshall, Mich., Sept. 20.—Henry Devonshire, a farmer living near Duck Lake, sixteen miles northeast of here, was shot and killed by J. C. Mitchell of Springfield. Mitchell gave himself up to the officers. The men quarreled over reports that Devonshire was alleged to have circulated about Mitchell's wife and Mitchell says that after hot words Devonshire attempted to stab him and that he then shot him.

Painless, Natural Childbirth.

Baby's coming into the world should be preceded by a certain preparation on the part of every woman who expects to become a mother. She owes it as a duty to her unborn babe, and to herself, her duty to her unborn babe to use every means within her power to aid his entrance into the world. Baby cannot help himself in this regard, therefore mother must. He has a hard enough time after his arrival, so let us make his coming easy. His health in after life depends greatly upon the manner of his coming: would you have your child a cripple, or would you have him a tower of strength? Strong men are but grown-up children: a famous surgeon in Vienna is devoting his life-work to the cure of little helpless cripples, deformed by birth; do not allow your child to become a cripple.

Mother's Friend is a balsam which will forestall any possibility of accident at birth; that is, it relaxes all the abdominal muscles and tissues, and permits of an easy access to the child. It eases the mother's pain, and so assists nature that when baby comes he starts out in life with a constitution well able to fight life's battles, and to bloom into strong pure manhood that is the comfort and delight of every true mother's heart. ## BUGLE WITH A HISTORY.

Veritable Curiosity in the Possession of New Hampshire Man.

Those veterans who served in the cavalry or artillery in the civil war were used to hearing all camp calls, from reveille to taps, boots and saddles, and all orders in action sounded upon the bugle; may have said uncomplimentary things of the bugle when unwelcome calls were sounded upon it; still, they are a living relic of the war, and when they are played, they find it interesting and will stop to examine it.

The bugles of the civil war times were keyless and no chromatic notes could be sounded upon them, but in earlier years keyed bugles were used. An old-timer that dates back to the last of the eighteenth century is now in possession of A. M. Cross of Claremont, N. H. It was purchased abroad in 1790 by James Jackson of Haverhill, N. H., and was first played by him at the raising and dedication of a large building in Haverhill.

It was sold by Mr. Jackson to E. Willis of the same town, who played it during the war of 1812. He was a great-grandfather of Mr. Cross, to whom the bugle recently came.

It is made of copper, but has a brass ferrule on the bell. The mouthpiece, keys and mountings are of brass. It has been carefully preserved and Mr. Cross proposes that it shall be kept in the possession of some descendant of Mr. Willis as long as possible.

Some of our state exchanges are lamenting the survival of the genuine "razorback." But he carries a fortune under that ornery hide of his—some day when the quality becomes more than the quantity the sweetness of his meat will be appreciated at its proper value, and his hams will rival those of Smithfield in market value, as they do in all the qualities appreciated by the epicure.—Florida Times-Union.

BRITISH ARMY CONQUESTS.

"Ours is the only army," says the London Telegraph, "which has, with the occasional assistance of the marines, fought in all the five continents from the Rhine to the Crimea, from Syria to Pekin, from Hudson bay to Patagonia, from Egypt to the Cape, and in the Australian seas from New Guinea to the Himalayas. But the ascent of the Himalayas and the march to Lhasa surpass, in purely picturesque fascination, everything in British military annals."

FIFTY YEARS' CHANGE

(Original.)

In 1848 Professor Carl Gottlieb of the University of Bonn was engaged upon different methods for an indefinite prolongation of life in a comatose state. There was at the time a student in the university, an American, Madison Curtice, who assisted the professor in these experiments. Curtice never returned to America; indeed he disappeared completely from the world.

After Professor Gottlieb's death his descendants continued to occupy his chair and the paternal mansion as well. In the cellar of the mansion was a door marked, "Open in 1898." When that date came round Professor Hermann Gottlieb, a grandson of Carl Gottlieb, was in possession of both the chair and the house. He opened the door, found an oblong box, took out a mummy and proceeded, under written instructions long kept in the family, to resuscitate it. This is all that ever leaked out about the matter, and the Gottliebs never would acknowledge any truth in it at all.

One summer evening in 1898 a young man arrived at an American city and made his way to his former home. He found it a beer saloon. With a sigh he sank into a chair at one of the tables and called for a mug of ale. When the proprietor handed it to him the young man begged him to bring one for himself. This he did and the stranger questioned him.

"Did you ever hear of the Curtice family, once leaders in this place?"

"Neh."

"Who are leaders now?"

"De pig men?"

"Yes, the leaders."

"Mike Flanagan is de piggest?"

"Mike Flanagan? Our family butcher was Mike Flanagan."

"Yah. De grandfather was a butcher. He went to Kansas and killed hogs, a pig lot of hogs. Dat made him a ferry pig man. You vat kills twenty hogs is not much. You vat kills 200,000 hogs is a pig man."

The stranger, wondering, slipped in silence.

"De Flanagans are pig people now," continued the proprietor. "Udder people can't touch 'em. Got plenty country places, yachts and such dings."

An hour later the stranger appeared before the palatial residence of the Flanagans in the center of a great private park. Dinner had just been finished and several men in evening dress were smoking on the piazza. A group of women were sitting near. The stranger mounted the steps, hat in hand, and addressed the men.

"Sirs," he said, "after many years' absence I have returned to my native land. When I left here my father, Munroe Curtice, occupied the position which is now occupied by your family—the Flanagans. I would fain take my position in society and humbly crave the boon of an introduction. I can assure you of my respectability by stating that I am related to two presidents, my father having been named for one, I for another."

The ladies held their breath before their faces to conceal their smiles. One of the gentlemen invited the stranger to take a seat on the veranda.

"You must excuse me," he said, "for not remembering your family since they have not been known here since I came into the world. You must have been born abroad or you would know that marked changes have come over this country. It now requires wealth to keep up a position."

"I have all that a bachelor of good family requires. Though my paternal estates have been lost to me, half a century ago a small sum was invested for me in Germany and it now produces $3,500 a year."

There was an audible titter from the ladies. The gentlemen turned their heads away.

"The incomes of the bachelors of our acquaintance," said the host, "vary from $20,000 to $10,000,000 a year."

The stranger looked disconcerted.

"May I ask," he said presently, "if any of the old families are now leaders in society?"

"We are as old as any. You must know that the leaders of the time you speak were not so influential as those who lead today. At that time few if any noble foreign alliances had been made. Now there are many. My sister is Duchess of Donemongal."

Again Mr. Curtice was thrown "flat-back." He was too well bred to show his astonishment and pushed on to avoid doing so.

"Perhaps I misunderstand the customs of these times," he said. "Half a century ago a Curtice had but to mention his name and all doors were opened to him, or where he needed introduction it was given to him. Desiring to see something of those who have taken the places of the leaders of that day, I would humbly beg you to present me. First I would pay my respects to your lady."

At this the women arose and went into the house, screwing their faces as they did so.

"The term lady," said the host, "is now used in America for saleswomen and hushanesses. In society we are men and women, at least to each other. But you must excuse me, sir. We are to have a few friends to play bridge whist with us this evening, and I must leave you. Happy to have seen you and regret my inability to serve you."

The gentlemen all rose and went into the house, leaving the astonished Mr. Curtice a picture of confusion.

That night, in a chamber over the beer saloon that had been visited by the stranger on his arrival, his dead body was found. He had begun a letter headed, "In my own room," but had only written a few words. Since he was unknown he was buried in the potter's field.
